KATIE FISCHER'S SAD DEATH.

PITIFUL STORY OF A TRUSTING GIRL WHO WENT ASTRAY.

Her Mother, Her Promised Husband and the Midwife Arrested on Suspicion of Having Caused Her Death-Justice Murray Sees No Evidence of Crime in the Case and Paroles the Prisoners.

Katie Fischer, a fair-haired girl, twenty years of age, lay dead to-day in the rooms of Mrs. Bertha Schroeder, at 904 First avenue. Veronica Fischer, the girl's mother, Emil Weber, her promised husband, and Mrs. Schroeder, were arrested on suspicion of causing the girl's death. The prisoners were taken before Justice Murray, at the Yorkville Court, where a sad story was told.

Katie was the daughter of Amos Fischer, wagon-maker, of 457 West Forty-fourth street. Two or three years ago she met Weber, a musician, now twenty-one years old. He lives at 607 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street. The couple were engaged to be married, when Weber betrayed the confidence which his sweetheart reposed in

When the girl discovered her condition she when the girl discovered her conductor and told her lover, and after a consultation, they decided to ask the advice of Mrs. Fischer. Katie, with tears and sobs, made her confes-sion and entreated her mother to keep the secret from her father, whom she loved so dearly that she could not endure the thought of his learning of her disgrace. The mother arounised.

Weber was willing to marry Katie at once. Weber was willing to marry Katie at once, and Nov. 15 was fixed for the wedding. The humble trousseau was provided, and Weber began looking for rooms. One day Katie surprised her mother and lover by fiatly refusing to be married until her child was born. She said that a friend had told her that if a woman married under these circumstances, both mother and child would die. The arguments and entreaties of Mrs. Fischer and Weber were powerless to turn Katie from her resolution.

Late in November she was taken to Mrs eder's house. A specious excuse to ac-for her absence was made to her . Weber visited his betrothed as often father. Weber visited his betrothed as often as his engagements would permit, and Mrs. Fischer risked exciting her husband's suspicions in order to be with her daughter.

Katie got along nicely, and her child, a fine boy, was born last Sunday. The young mother improved until Thursday, when in some unaccountable manner she took cold.

Yesterday Dr. King, of 257 East Fifty-second street, was called in. He found Katie sinking rapidly, and advised her friends to send her to a hospital. At St. Luke's and the Roosevelt Mrs. Fischer applied for an ambulance, but it was refused. Soon after midnight Bellevue responded to the call, and Dr. Collins went with an ambulance to the midwife's house.

Katie was dying. Dr. Collins said that it would be useless to remove her. At about 2 o'clock she died in her mother's arms. Weber was present. The surgeon notified the police, and Detectives Cuff and Kane, of the Fifty-first street station, arrested Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Schroeder and Weber. The midwife showed her diploma to Justice Murray.

He found no evidence of crime and paroled the prisoners to give the police a chance to the prisoners to give the police a chance to find some basis for their suspicions. The magistrate seemed disposed to regard the arrest of Mrs. Fischer as quite uncalled for.

SHERIFF WILLIAMSON'S 'BONNIE BRIDE. His Big Heart Throbbed for a Georgia Min inter's Daughter and He Captured Her.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 14.—The news of the omantic marriage of Sheriff Williamson has est leaked out. Rev. R. H. Bennett, a Primitive Baptist divine, and the High Sheriff are near neighbors, about two miles from Blackshear.

Death came to the Sheriff's home about two nonths ago and took away his wife, since which time he has been disconsolate and forlorn and only found comfort in the society of Miss Ivy Bennett, the lovely daughter of his near neighbor.

The parents were unsuspecting and flattered themselves that they were the magnet which drew the big Sheriff around their hearthstone, but in the manly Sheriff there beats a great big heart and it soon learned to beat in unison with its fair comforter's, which became love and the old story was soon told.

HE IS A SWINDLING BEGGAR.

Frank Schubert's Sad and Applent Tales

Prank Schubert, a neatly dressed young man, was taken to Jefferson Market yesterday by De tective Sergt. Bruner and charged with swindling. Dec. 30 he called at the office of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, at No. 79 Fourth avenue, and represented that he came from Cincinnati, was out of employment and destitute. nati, was out of employment and destitute. Miss Frances C. Nixon, one of the inspectresses, gave him 50 cents and a meal. A day of two later ahe gave him 530. He told her he had rented rooms for his wife and four children and had rented rooms for his wife and four children and had made arrangements with Mr. Bauman, the furniture dealer on First avenue, to have his home furnished. Then she gave him 55, a tacket for a dollar's worth of groceries and also a tacket for half a ton of coal. The tacket for the coal was returned to her, as no one named Schubert lived at Twenty-sixth street and First avenue, where he said he resided.

Miss Nixon then notified Inspector Hyrnes and Schubert was arrested at his home, No. 149 West street. Five weeks ago he called on Mr. Merz, of No. 55 Maiden lane, and obtained a letter to get his wife into a hospital. He used the letter for begging purposes and obtained $5 from Real Estate Agent Hasbooker, of No. 73 Pine street. He was arrested and taken to Essex Market Court, where Justice Duffy suspended sentence on account of it being his first offense. On this occasion Justice White held him for trial.

Wants His Mother to Have no Dower. A case where a son does not want his mother to have dower in his father's estate was argued before Justice Dykman yesterday at the Special Term of the Supreme Court at White Plains. Chester Bedell, a large real-estate operator in Brooklyn, died in March, 1885, intestate. About $150,000 of his real March, 1885, intestate. About $150,000 of his real catate was in the name of his brother-in-law, John Layton. The heirs of Chester Bedell began proceedings to compel Layton to convey it to them. The matter was submitted to arbitrators, who awarded Layton $5,000 upon his conveying the property to the heirs. The deed was made to the heirs and declared that the property was conveyed and accepted by the heirs, subject to the right of dower of the widow. Although the son, Whitam F. Bedell, has had the cure and management of the estate, he has failed to render an accounting. His three sisters and his mother brought an scrion for a partition and an accounting of the estate and the son sets up the claim that his mother is not entitled to dower in the property conveyed by Layton unto dower in the property conveyed by Layton un-der the deed to the heirs. HIS ONLY HOPE A STRAW

DAN DRISCOLL LIKELY TO DIE ON THE GALLOWS NEXT FRIDAY.

Doubts if the Execution Can Be Stayed if a New Trial is Denied-The Question One Never Decided-As a Last Resort Lawyer Howe May Appeal to the Governor-The Whyo Murderer Hopeful.

Will Dan Driscoll hang next Friday? This is a question which is troubling

Sheriff Grant and Warden Walsh more than it is Driscoll. The Whyo murderer feels quite confident that he will not swing, and his confidence is born of the motion made by his counsel, William F. Howe, before Recorder Smyth yesterday.

Counsellor Joe F. Moss, of Howe & Humnel's office, visited the condemned murderer n his cell at the Tombs last evening and recited to him the proceedings had in court and assured him of an appeal and stay of execution in event of an unfavorable decision of the motion for a new trial. He found that the Whyo chief's wife and mother had preeded him with the news.

Mr. Howe did not appear at his office today, but Mr. Moss said that Recorder Smyth had intimated that his decision on the motion would be rendered on Monday morning and that, should it be adverse to Driscoll, an appeal therefrom would be immediately taken to the General Term and a stay of execution to the General Term and a stay of execution asked.

Driscoll is in a very peculiar position. There is no provision made in the Code of Criminal Procedure for review on appeal of an adverse order entered under the very peculiar section allowing a motion for a new trial, on the ground of newly discovered evidence, at any time before execution. Neither is there a provision for a stay of judgment.

Furthermore, it has never been decided that an appeal from an order denying such a motion is appealable.

In the case of Edward Hovey, who murdered his sister-in-law in this city in 1882, a motion of this kind was denied by Justice Donohue, and an appeal had to the General Term. Justice Donohue's order was affirmed, but the Court refused to decide whether the order was appealable out of deference to one member of the court who thought it was.

The General Term at that time was composed of Presiding Justice Davis and Justices Brady and Cullen.

Appeal was again had to the Court of Apposed of Presiding Justice Davis and Justices Brady and Cullen.

Appeal was again had to the Court of Appeals, which affirmed the decision of the General Term and also refused to pass upon the right to appeal under section 466. Justices Rapallo, Miller and Finch dissented from this opinion and insisted upon the right to appeal, and Justice Rapallo wrote a long opinion favorable to the prisoner.

Counsellor Howe is hopeful of getting a stay of execution, notwithstanding there is no precedent for it, but in case he does not, he will proceed to Albany and ask the Governor to reprieve Driscoll pending an appeal if one has to be taken.

It is only a straw that Danny Driscoll is clinging to now, and it is extremely doubtful it will prove the salvation of his life.

BERGAMINES BANK STILL CLOSED.

but the Bank is Probably Sound.

A good deal of mystery surrounded the Italian banking-house of Emilliana P. Bergamini at No. 15 Centre street. The death of the proprietor oc curred on Dec. 23 and the funeral services were held on Christmas Day. But the bank did not reopen after the legals boliday, and the denizens of Mulberry street, who principally made up the depositors, were at a less to understand why so pro tracted a season of mourning was observed.

The explanation has since been made that there is some delay about probating banker Bergamini's will. His heirs are his wife and daughters by his first marriage. One of the latter is now in Naples, and her consent must first be obtained before the document can be executed. It is said that she has forwarded by mail a legal paper which will meet the requirements of the case. But until that is received the widow will not assume the responsi-forwarded by mail a legal paper which will meet the requirements of the case. But until that is received the widow will not assume the responsibility of resuming the business which Bergamin's death temporarily suspended.

There is said to be unward of $140,000 or $150,000 on deposit, averaging $50 to $100 to each depositor, and the largest deposit will not exceed $1,000. The large number of persons interested caused the action of Widow Bergamini to be extensively capwassed by the Italian colony. They knew little about American legal procedurs, and through ignorance of the reasons which have led Mrs. Bergamini to exercise such precaution, their criticisms have given rise to rumors affecting the management of the bank.

Lawyer Marsh, of No. 111 Broadway, was counsel for Bergamini, but was superseded because the widow imagined that he would favor her step-children in preference to herueil. Those who are in a position to know say that the bank will resume business sgain in a few days, and that the extate of Bergamini came to America in 1849 and was a collector of St. Luke's Hospital for a number of years. At one time he was Italian interpreter in the county courts. In 1879 he founded Bergamini's Bank, in Centre street, and had a branch in Second avenue, in Harlem, He was also proprietor of a liquor store in Bleecker street and had various other business interests. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1888.

How the Red-Hended Girl and the White Horse are Immertalized in Lithography. An enormous six-sheet poster which has recently made its appearance on the bill poards of New York is attracting a good deal of attention. It represents an enormous or attention. It represents an enormous snow-white horse, with his neck craned out in a way which denotes great speed and his bushy tail flying in the air. Standing upon this animal in a graceful position is a beautiful female clad in spotless white. The bill would be absolutely colorless save for the fact that the graceful rider, who is depicted in life size, has a wonderful head of flery red hair. Her rosente tresses reach nearly to her waist.

red hair. Her roseate tresses reach nearly to her waist.

It needs no inscription to emphasize the point of the picture. It is the historical "red-headed girl on the white horse," and whenever the bill is displayed it has at all times an admiring throng of spectators. A legend in the upper corner tells the tale. It reads: "See the R—d—H—d girl on the W—e—H—eat Robbins's Winter Circus." At the fashionable winter circus, by the way, nothing but white horses are used, and it takes a large number of red-headed girls in the boxes and parquet seats to match them all. The circus has now been runing three weeks and the American Institute is crowded every afternoon and evening.

Remarkable Case of Mrs. Schwarz, of St. Paul-She Recovers Her Voice. (SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.-A singular case which is just now attracting considerable attention and causing much speculation among the medical fraternity of this city is that of Mrs. V. J. Schwarz, the wife of Valentine J. Schwarz, pressman at the office of Die Volkszietung, residing at 174 West Ninth street.

About four months ago Mrs. Schwarz, while pursuing her usual household avocations, one evening suddenly lost her voice, becoming speechless altogether, and seemed doomed to be mute for the remainder of her tife. The cause was entirely inexplicable, as the throat, larynx and vocal cords appeared free from disease of any description and the unfortunate lady remained herself in excel-lent health.

unfortunate lady remained herself in excel-lent health.

On Sunday evening Mrs. Schwartz was suddenly seized with a fit resembling epi-lepsy, and on her recovery from the attack her relatives were delighted to hear her speak with all her accustomed fluency without difficulty or hesitation. It is conjectured that the vocal cords became paralyzed and the sudden convulsion of the fit once more brought them into action.

LADIES ROUT THE COLONEL.

ROW BETWEEN WOMAN SUFFRAGISTS AND LONG-HAIRED SOCIALISTS.

R. J. Hinton's Friends Balked in an Attempt to Oust Miss Johnson and Mrs. Cynthia Leonard from the Workingmen's Free Library-The Stove Taken Away and the Shelves Pulled Down.

Some stray embers of the controversy be ween Henry George and his former Socialistic allies, which had smouldered in secret ever since last autumn's campaign, burst into a fierce flame in the Civil Justice's Court at Jefferson Market this morning. It was a faction fight between the George and the anti-George elements of the Socialistic Labor party, American section, and the long-haired and wild-eyed element for sook their daily struggle for bread and crowded into Justice Deane's court-room. Anonymous postal cards, attributed to Col.

Richard J. Hinton and inviting the Socialists to "attend the circus and see the George people and woman suffragists hid out," were widely distributed and pretty generally responded to.

The cause of this rallying of the factions was an insignificant little dispossess suit brought by Fenelon & McManus, landlords of 16 Clinton place, against Mrs. Cynthia Leonard and Miss Anna P. Johnson, who for two years have had charge of the Workingmen's Free Library and Reading-Room at that address.

street broker, constituted the Library Committee.

Everything went quietly until the Socialists were forced out of the Labor party. The ladies sympathized with Mr. George, while Col. Hinton, Charles Sotheran, Julius Bardollo, Louis Weise and others abused him and his licutenant at every meeting.

Two months ago Col. Hinton raised the cry that the Library Committee was composed of woman suffragists and enemies of the Socialists' cause, and wanted the members to resign. Falling to get them to resign, the Hinton crowd packed a meeting with "raw boys and strangers from the West"—as Miss Johnson put it—and elected a new committee, consisting of Mrs. Hinton, Julius Bardollo and Louis Weise.

Then the committee notified the landlords that the library would move on Jau. I, and tried to force the ladies to quit by taking away the stove and pulling down the library away the stove and pulling down the library shelves.

Miss Johnson offered to pay the rent for January, but the landlords, being overpersuaded by Col. Hinton and his colleagues, refused the money.

Both sides were ready when Justice Deane took his seat on the bench, the ladies being represented by Edward W. Searing and the landlords and the new committee by Francis G. Young. There was every prospect that the "circus" would occur according to promise, but Lawyer Young suddenly discovered that the lease for the library room was taken out by Broker Nichols and Miss Johnson and that they had the right to stay till May 1 if they paid the rent regularly. The suit was therefore discontinued, Miss Johnson paying the month's rent.

Miss Johnson said she would bring suit against Col. Hinton for sending a crowd of Socialists into the library to destroy the shelves and take away the stove.

"It was an outrage," said the lady, vehemently. "I sat in that dismantled room till my bones ached, and I was nearly bent double with cold and I'll make them suffer.

'They have no right to the books anyway. They were put in charge of Mrs. Leonard and myself by the Manhattan Liberal Club and others. Five hundred of the volumes were the Thimme and Scott loan collections. I have letters from the Trustees of the Manhattan Liberal Club asking me not to let Col. Hinton or his erowd get possession of them.

"All along we have paid the rent and running expenses of this library. We got contributions from Edward Seligman, Mr. Thurber, Elizabeth Thompson and other prominent people. Once Miss Lillian Russell sang for us and we got people to lecture for the benefit of the library.

"Col. Hinton, Julius Bardollo and other Socialists like them, were only there on sufferance. They packed a meeting and hoped to get hold of the library to wreck it and divert the proceeds to the Socialistic Labor party."

After the court proceedings Lawyer Young offered to give the ladies $22 and pay the gas bill if they would move out, but Miss Johnson firmly declined.
"We will make your clients pay for wreek." "We will make your clients pay for wreck-ing our place," she said.

At the yard the boys amused themselves by driving through the edge of the pond where the beeves are watered, and at last they drove far into the pond, and the wagon sank, throwing the boys into the water.

None of them could swim. One of them clung to the horse's neck, but in its frantic efforts to escape it threw the boy off and trampled upon him.

Two women living on the lot saw the boys drowning and screamed for help.

Two colored men arrived in time to see one boy sink twice, and recognizing them, screamed to them for help before sinking forever. They plunged in and saved him.

Three boys were drowned—Charles Asbury Thomas, aged thirteen years, and two colored boys, aged eleven and thirteen. All of the bodies have been recovered. The pond has a big sink in its centre, said to be forty feet deep. The horse was cut from the harness and saved.

THE ROLL OF MERIT.

A Long List of Names of Bright Scholars.

The Weekly Recognition of the Children's Diligence.

Primary School Pupils Who Stand First in Their Classes-A Cheerful Struggle to Succeed Excited by a Knowledge that Their Efforts Will Be Recognized-A Fine Record for the New Year's Second Weeks

The thousands of children in the primary departments of the public schools have just finished their second week of study in the new year, and their teachers say they have never applied themselves more diligently and cheerfully to their duties. The printing of the names of the best scholars in last Saturday's Evening World was hailed with universal satisfaction, both principals and teachers recognizing therein a means of rousing a healthy spirit of emulation among the children. In each of the schools at the beginning of the week it was announced that the boy an girl who were found at the head of their respective classes on Friday afternoon would have their names forwarded to THE WORLD for publication. To win this much coveted distinction the children exerted themselves to an unwonted degree.

Owing to delay in some instances and the approaching examinations the names of some of the pupils who stand highest in their classes are not published to-day, but it is hoped that the merit of all of them will be soon recognized. The names that did not
